Australian Social Cohesion Survey, 2007

Overview

Abstract
The Social Cohesion Survey is a series of detailed surveys on social cohesion, immigration and population issues. A prime objective of the surveys is to further understanding of the social impact of Australia's increasingly diverse immigration program. The series of surveys forms part of the Scanlon Foundation Social Cohesion Research Program (SCRP) which commenced in 2007 under the direction of the Monash Institute for the Study of Global Movements (MISGM) and the Australian Multicultural Foundation (AMF). A key element of the SCRP was the conduct of a landmark Australian Social Cohesion Survey in 2007, which was conducted by the Social Research Centre on behalf of the research consortium.

The aim of the survey is to:
• Establish a benchmark measure of the state of social cohesion in Australia, and
• Compare this benchmark with a series of smaller local level surveys conducted in areas with a high proportion of persons from non-English speaking backgrounds.

The survey used a random sampling methodology, stratified by geographic location. The sample was stratified by state / territory, with a minimum quota of 200 interviews per state / territory to be achieved (i.e. a sub-total of 1,600 interviews). The remaining 400 interviews were allocated across the five most populous states (NSW, Vic, Qld, WA and SA) on a probability proportional to size basis. The study covered a variety of topics, including economic conditions, political participation, socio-cultural attitudes, discrimination, reflection of current life in Australia, and local communities.

Sampling

Sampling Procedure
One-stage stratified or systematic random sample

Response Rate
The final overall response rate for the survey, defined as interviews as a proportion of in-scope sample members contacted within the call cycle, was 44%.

Weighting
Data for the national level was weighted by Age and Sex within state using 2006 Census data (weight1). A new national weighting variable was later added to the dataset to weight data by Age, Sex and Education (rim_wt).

Data Collection

Data Collection Dates	start 2007-06-21 end 2007-08-01
Time Period(s)	start 2007-06-21 end 2007-08-01
Data Collection Mode	Telephone interview

Data Collection Notes
Respondents were selected using the “next birthday” method” and a range of strategies were adopted to maximise response, including repeated call backs to establish contact, the operation of a 1800 number by the Social Research Centre, and interviewing in languages other the English. A total of 60,288 calls were placed to 15,523 sample records to achieve 2,012 completed interviews. This equates to an interview every 30.0 calls and an average of 3.9 calls per sample record. The most commonly occurring call outcomes were no answer (53.2%), Telstra message / number disconnected (9.5%) and answering machine (8.9%). An interview was achieved at just over one in ten (13%) of numbers to which calls were initiated. Approximately half of the numbers (53.4%) were unusable. The average interview length was 15.3 minutes.

Structured

Data Collector(s)	The Social Research Centre (SRC)

Supervision
In addition to providing a 1800 number, offering to send an introductory letter and arranging for interviews in the agreed languages, the other response maximisation procedures that applied to the project included:
• Referring sample members to the Monash University number on an as required basis
• Hosting a web-page containing responses to frequently asked questions on the Study for Global Movements (Monash University) website, and
• Ensuring appropriately trained interviewers worked on the survey (see also Section 4.2 of the Methodological Report).

Data Processing & Appraisal

Data Editing
The data were checked by the archive for missing variable and value labels, out of range values and wild codes, logical inconsistencies, and confidentiality.

Other Processing

The sampling technique for the survey was Random Digit Dialling (RDD). Approach letters introducing the survey were mailed to all households where randomly generated telephone numbers could be matched to an address in the Electronic White Pages (EWP).
